DURING each year it is proposed to pay the Shareholders, half-yearly, upon their paid-up Capital, interest at the rate of 5 per cent, per annum; and, so soon as practicable

after the expiration of each year, a Profit

and Loss account, to be made up, showing the results of the business, the proportion being made for all outstanding debts.

Out of the Profits will first be paid an additional 1 per cent. on the paid-up Capital, making, with the interest to be paid, as explained above, 10 per cent. to the Shareholders.

Before any further division of Profits takes place amongst the Shareholders, one-fourth,

say 25 per cent. of the residue, will be retained

amongst those Insurers out of whose merchants have already come forward as

active promoters and supporters of the undertaking, and the Committee look for a very valuable constituency from Chinese merchants.

The success of other public companies in

Shanghai and Hongkong, and the evidence of a large sum of money seeking invest ment in China, encourage the belief that the proposed Capital for this Bank will be readily subscribed; many influential native

merchants have already come forward as

active promoters and supporters of the undertaking.

The undesignated, having been appointed

Agent for the above Company at the Port

HONGKONG, MARCH 16TH 1872.

It might have been hoped that the very serious epidemic which was made last year concerning the neglect on the part of the Government to make any proper provision for the treatment of small pox patients, would have resulted in some suitable and permanent arrangements being made for the future. But provision and provision are not the qualities for which Hongkong officialdom is specially celebrated. It is great statistics, wonderful in philosophical disquisitions, but in the simple and practical affairs to which it is necessary that attention should be paid from day to day, it displays, upon almost every occasion, the most remarkable apathy and incompunction. It was thus it happened last year about this time that the public were at once startled and outraged by hearing that the only provision which had been made for patients suffering from so frightful a scourge as small pox, was some marshes outside the Civil Hospital. The matter being communicated upon in the papers, arrangements were, through the interposition of the Chinese Governor, made to take the patients over to Stone Cutters' Island, and it was not unreasonable to suppose that there would not again be grounds for complaint on the subject. The Community will, therefore, no doubt be astonished to hear that even now no proper arrangements have been made. The season for small pox, which always sets in with the return of the warm weather, has been allowed to come upon us again without any means being adopted to meet the invader. The state of affairs existing may be judged of from an incident which we took place a short time ago. A small pox patient was sent in a public chair to the Civil Hospital, but it seemed that the could not be received there, and it will perhaps scarcely be credited that the man, with the eruption flushing all over his body, was conveyed through the whole length of Hongkong, that is, from the Civil Hospital to the Seamen's Hospital, together with a letter requesting that he might be received at the latter institution. This was fortunately complied with, although the Government have of course no grounds on which they could demand the man's admission; but what would have been done with the unfortunate patient had he not been received at the Seamen's Hospital, it is impossible to conjecture. The very least would have been a reconvoyance to the Civil Hospital—possibly in another public chair—and the infliction of so much more unnecessary disturbance of the patient, who, of course, might have been kept clear of all unnecessary tax upon his weakened powers of endurance.

It is really impossible to understand how such neglect as this takes place, and especially so after our prominent attention has been called to the matter. It would be imagined that after it had been found not only practicable, but easy, to convey the patients to Stone Cutters' Island, and there to treat them, removed from the noise and irritated atmosphere of Hongkong, far more successfully than even under proper arrangements can be the case in the town, while the chances of contagion are, at the same time, reduced to a minimum, all the necessary arrangements to meet the difficulty on the next return of the epidemic would have long ago been made. But, as is shown, such is not the fact, and we now find that numerous cases of small-pox are occurring, and there are no means even of a decent description to meet the difficulty. It is high time that the "matter" were taken in hand, unless it is wished that the disorder may spread to a much more serious extent than is necessary. Arrangements ought to be made at once for the treatment of patients this season, and at the same time some steps of a permanent nature should be adopted, so that we may not year after year be taken by surprise. It is now perfectly established that we must look for particular returns of small pox as an evil to which we are subject, and where the means of at least greatly palliating it are so simple it will be a disgrace to the Colony if the most complete and effective permanent arrangements are not completed between this and next Spring.

The French Mail brings intelligence of the death of Mr. W. B. Bryans, of Messrs. Turner & Co., who for a long time filled the position of Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, and for a short period before his departure held the like office here. His death will be early noticed, as will come to us, regret, as he was a man possessed of much individual, and also for the energy and spirit with which he acted in connection with the various public matters in which he took part.

The Missions between the Colorado's crew and the Club crew is arranged to come off to-day, at 4 p.m., weather permitting.

A curious mistake was made concerning the performance at the Circus on Thursday. It was put off in the evening, but too late to prevent a large number of people attending, and consequently it was finally decided to have the performance for Mr. Pollock's Benefit, and some of his best hits were made accordingly, took very well. This evening, the performance is, we are informed, to be early over, and with the attraction of the clever Japanese performers will no doubt prove attractive.

Mr. Lester, the Coroner, held three inquests yesterday at the Government Civil Hospital. The first was on the body of a man named Wong-ahng, who fell down suddenly in the street. He was found to have been suffering from heart-disease, and the jury found "death from natural causes." The verdict in the case of a woman's body found in the harbour was open, as no one could determine the cause. The third inquiry was on the body of a woman named Okau-a-sam, who fell from the cook-house of the upper floor at No. 5, Salvo-lane, through the hole in the floor which appears to be common in Chinese houses. The Coroner expressed his opinion that these holes should be nailed round. A verdict of accidental death was recorded.

THE RECENT ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

The first series of the Eclipse Expeditions promises to be most satisfactory. All who have followed the progress of recent researches into the subject of the solar corona, have recognised the fact that the one thing now needed is a series of good photographs of the object. Mr. Brewster had obtained one good picture, but one picture was not sufficient. He had only the last eleven seconds of totality to work in (or rather his work during the totality was interrupted, and he had to return to the clouds); what he obtained above all things, is a series of pictures taken during the whole process of totality. Until we have such a series, it is difficult, if not impossible, to determine precisely what effect is due to the real solar corona, and what effect to the atmospheric illumination undoubtedly existing even when the eclipse is most complete. Now we have from two sources the most promising account of photographic success. Professor (the good old astronomer) Brewster, during the eclipse at Acregate, telegraphed to the Astronomer Royal that the weather was fine, and the telescopic and camera photographs successful. Colonel Tumaini, who was in charge of the Indian Eclipse Expedition, stationed at Ootacamund, on the Nilgierries, informs Dr. Huggins that six good photographs have been obtained. Nothing could be more satisfactory, so far the photographic work of these two observing parties is concerned.

But we have further information of extreme interest. In the first place, Mr. Pouson tells us that good sketches have been taken, and that the polarographic work was successful. His statement that many bright lines were seen in the spectrum will doubtless be found, when interpreted, to be equally satisfactory. At present it is far from complete that it does not inform us in what spectrum the bright lines are seen. We know already that the spectrum of the red part of the spectrum is the same as the green, and we also know that the corona has a spectrum showing lines or more bright lines. If the spectroscopic work of Mr. Pouson's party have been able to prove that the corona's spectrum contains many bright lines, they have achieved a very noteworthy, and, it may be added, a very unexpected success. But it would be premature to discuss a statement which, as it stands, is undoubtedly meaningless.

Colonel Tumaini, and the most important of all the measurements, excepting only (and, perhaps, scarcely excepting), those relating to the photographs. He tells us that "the reverberation of lines is entirely confirmed," and Dr. Huggins explains that this statement refers to an important observation by Professor Young in Spain last December, when he saw at the moment of the total obscuration all the dark Fraunhofer lines "reversed," that is bright on dark ground.

Perhaps some further experiments may not be necessary.

The solar prominences seen round the sun during total eclipses, show by the bright lines in their spectrum that they consist of glowing vapour, hydrogen being one of their chief constituents. At a lower range that is closer to the sun—the coloured spectra of the chromosphere exhibits the same bright lines, and occasionally others—in fact, Professor Young has counted a many 120 lines showing the presence of several other elements.

Now Father Huggins, the American Astronomer, for us to get yet closer to the sun, there is a yet more complex atmosphere, containing not only glowing hydrogen, but the glowing vapours of all the metallic and other elements, whose presence in the sun is indicated by the innumerable dark lines of the solar spectrum.

But the difficulty was to prove this; for the evidence adduced by Sechi, though strong, was not quite convincing, and indeed his work was stoutly contested by Mr. Huggins. The colour of the atmosphere was undoubtedly very shallow, perhaps little more than a few or three hundred miles deep—a mere nothing at the sun's enormous distance—and the glare of the sun's orb was quite sufficient to obliterate all traces of its atmospheric shell. Now Professor Young, taking advantage of the fact that when the moon has just covered the sun the shallow atmosphere is disclosed for a few moments when the light obtained, last December, a view of its most interesting feature, a series of innumerable bright lines arranged like cross threads on a ribbon and ranging through all the colours of the rainbow, from deep red at one extremity of the ribbon to darkest violet at the other. Nor was the charming hieroglyphic difficult to interpret. It meant nothing less than this, that the true solar atmosphere had at length been discovered. Above the glowing surface of the sun lies an amazing troposphere, in which the most minute particles of our own air are roamed by the vapours of iron, copper, and other familiar elements, these vapours glowing with the intensity of the sun's heat; it is this remarkable discovery which Colonel Tumaini has been able to confirm. The mere confirmation, indeed, of another person's results may seem unimportant; but in this instance, apart from the fact that a sufficient importance has been given to such confirmation by the doubts with which Professor Young's observation had been met, and the great interest of the discovery makes any fresh light which may be thrown upon it extremely valuable.
